A legend begins

BEECHCRAFT
BONANZA

Since its debut in 1947, the Beechcraft® Bonanza® was an instant classic. The Beechcraft® Aircraft Corporation had become a powerhouse of aviation manufacturing during World War II and was now entering the post-war era with swagger and head-turning design. The Bonanza® was a category-shifting single-engine aircraft with a signature V-tail configuration that reduced aircraft weight while delivering confident control.

To drum up attention and publicity for their new aircraft, Walter and Olive Ann Beech sponsored aviator William Odom's attempt at the longest non-stop solo flight. In 1949, Odom flew a Bonanza® called the "Waikiki Beech" across the Pacific Ocean from Hawaii to California, then cross-country to Teterboro Airport, New Jersey. Flying over 5,000 miles in under 40 hours earned Odom a place in aviation history and put the Beechcraft® Bonanza® firmly on the map. A legend was born.

The Beechcraft® Baron® as we know it now was introduced to the public in 1961. Originally known as the Beechcraft 55 Baron, it combined the fuselage of the Beechcraft® Bonanza® with the tail from the Beechcraft T-34 Mentor military trainer. This inventive hybrid was a true light twin-engine piston, with comfortable seating for up to five.

Favored for its twin-engine redundancy and security, the Baron® was nicknamed the "pilot's aircraft" for its training abilities, ease of use and rugged durability.

Whether you choose a Baron® or Bonanza®, Beechcraft® pistons represent joy, adventure and aviation ingenuity. They are the ultimate vehicle to craft a legendary life.
